GOVERNMENT QUIETS COMMUNISTS IN NEW REPUBLIC OF SPAIN

Ignores Manifesto Of Alfonso; Issues New Orders

MADRID, April 17.—Confident that the monarchy has vanished permanently, the Republican government assumed the task of keeping Spain united in the face of disruptive quakes, and today turned its back upon Alfonso XIII's claim that he remains king.

The announcement by the exiled monarch that he had not abdicated and hoped to be back on the throne soon created little comment. A government statement disposed of the matter in the following summary:

"Mister Alfonso Bourbon's manifesto cannot be judged worthy of comment by the Republican cabinet. We prefer to let the country be the judge. We would be unfair to the monarchial reaction, because the people are supporting the republic."

The wild rejoicing which lasted for two days on proclamation of a republic has about dissipated itself, although it flared briefly again when Major Ramon Franco arrived here from exile in Paris. A great crowd, which remembered his spectacular attempt to start a revolution from the local airfield, carried him in triumph to the streets. The government appointed him chief of the Republican air service. Communist disorders still harassed the new administration, but it was believed here that the uprisings would soon subside altogether. Seville and Bilbao remained under martial law after several fatal clashes there.

A solution for the Catalan situation is still being sought by Provisional President Alcalá Zamora. The province declared its own republic on the day the monarchy was overthrown, and established its own government. In some quarters the fear persisted that the separatist movement might spread and thus prevent a peaceful formation of the united republic.

A number of important decrees were promulgated by the Madrid administration. They include a declaration of religious liberty, separating the church from the state.

The government, in its decree, informed the papal representative residing in Madrid that the Catholic Church will lose its privileged position held for many years.

The immensely valuable properties of the royal family will be carefully disposed of. Personal belongings of the exiled royalty will be returned to them, but the seven palaces of the monarchy will probably revert to the state.

LONDON, April 17.—A hostile crowd of Spaniards jeered Count and Countess Jordana on arrival from Morocco at Gibraltar today, according to a Central News dispatch.

Count Jordana, Morocco commissioner of the ousted Spanish royal government, sought refuge at Gibraltar after his flight from Tetuan. The mob demanded that the couple be turned over to the Republican forces, but their demands were met with a police order to disperse.

FRIENDS TRYING TO RECONCILE COBB

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—While friends tried to effect a reconciliation between Ty Cobb and his wife, the former baseball star remained in hiding here today.

Cobb did not board a train for Los Angeles yesterday. It was reported, but stayed here with George Putnam, executive of the San Francisco baseball club.

It was said by the latter's friends that Cobb would remain here in the hope that mutual friends may persuade Mrs. Cobb to drop her suit instituted at Augusta, Ga., several days ago.

When Cobb left Monterey Wednesday, he had planned to return home immediately.

CHESTERTON SAILS

NEW YORK, April 17.—Gilbert K. Chesterton, English writer, is returning home today after a visit in American cities. Paul Robeson, singer-actor, is also sailing for London today.

Peter Beatty, son of Admiral Earl Beatty, noted English sea lord, is arriving from an American visit.

DIRECTOR IS SOUGHT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 17.—Charges of failure to provide for his son today caused officers to seek Marshal Nellian, film director for a court appearance. Mrs. Gertrude Nellian claims the director is $5,000 behind in his weekly payments.

NEW GIRL BAZAAR

A "girl bazaar," strikingly paralleled to that recently exposed in Chicago, has been uncovered in Hollywood, according to police, with the arrest of "Baroness" Katherine Kuhlwindt, above, following a raid upon her luxurious apartment. Mrs. Kuhlwindt denied any significance to the list of 150 girls and wealthy men "clients" found in her apartment.

RETURN OF MARINES FROM NICARAGUA IS SOUGHT BY CRITICS

Policy Under Fire; Protection Asked By Senators

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The apparent reluctance of the Hoover administration to use marines in protecting American property in Nicaragua today drew a new demand for the withdrawal of all American units from the Latin American republic.

The administration's critics declared the failure of the government to protect American interests in Nicaragua left no further excuse for the maintenance of marines in the country. This criticism came from the Capitol group, which has been fighting for two years to bring the marines home.

At the same time, Senator Swanson, ranking Democrat of the senate foreign relations committee, and Rep. Fish (R) of New York, ranking majority member of the house foreign affairs committee, demanded that American property rights be protected in the Latin American republic.

Swanson charged the Hoover administration would be derelict in its duty if it failed to use its armed forces to protect American citizens and property rights anywhere in the world.

"I am loathe to believe any administration would publicly announce a policy that no protection would be accorded American property endangered by lawless bands in a foreign country, where the local government is unable to maintain order," said Swanson.

Sensors Brookhart (R) of Iowa, and King (D) of Utah, interpreted the reports of a changed policy as furnishing a new reason for withdrawing the marines. They have opposed the marine occupation of Nicaragua ever since American forces were ordered there by President Coolidge.

"If the administration's policy is to disregard attacks on American property in Nicaragua, it is time we get our marines home," said Brookhart.

King said it was a "mistake ever to send the marines to Nicaragua and it's a mistake to keep them there."

"Many American lives were lost in this foolish venture," he added. "It would be far better to show our good will toward Latin America by bringing the marines home than by keeping them there. The question of the Nicaraguan government maintaining order is that nation's own business."

The "hit and run" policy of the department, Fish said, indicated not only a reversal of its own practices but those of previous administrations as well.

Either the American government should protect foreign lives and property or lay aside the Monroe doctrine and permit other nations to land their own marines, he asserted.

DROUGHT RELIEF PLANS TO BE FORMED AT CONFERENCE PLANNED SATURDAY

Governor Signs Mildren Bill Providing $80,000 For Expenditures, Most As Labor Wages; Determine Program

COLUMBUS, O., April 17.—Plans for expenditure of $80,000 for immediate relief of Ohio drought sufferers, provided for by the Mildren emergency act, signed by Governor Gorge White Thursday, will be mapped out at a conference at the state house Saturday, it was announced here today.

The Mildren act, passed at the recent legislative session, authorizes expenditure of $10,000 for drilling wells in southern and southeastern Ohio as a protection against drought and as an aid to motorists; $30,000 by the state conservation division for cleaning up and reclaiming park lands in Auglaize, Mercer, Logan and Summit Counties; $15,000 to the state forestry division for cutting timber, building roads and trails in state forests and planting trees on state lands in Vinton, Ross, Scioto, Lawrence and Athens Counties and at the state nursery in Washington County; $10,000 by state department of public works for repairs, improvements and replacements on state canals, and $15,000 by the adjutant general for repairs on sixteen armories in southern and southeastern Ohio.

The great bulk of this money will be spent as wages for laborers.

The conferees are expected to agree upon a uniform scale of wages applicable to all departments of state government which will provide employment designated in the Mildren act.

A program also is to be decided upon which will insure that greatest possible "turnover" of labor, thus permitting employment of a maximum number of needy and idle workers.

Other preliminary arrangements are to be made at Saturday's conference with the view to starting this relief work at the earliest possible date.

POLICE KILL ALLEGED SLAYER, ARREST WOMEN AFTER GUN DUEL

BOWLING GREEN, O., April 17.—Police today had identified the man shot and killed in a running battle here yesterday as "Billy the killer" Miller, of Beaver County, Pa., hunted throughout the middle-west as an escaped convict and bandit.

Miller, 25, said to have slain his brother, Joseph Miller, in 1925, and charged with numerous crimes since, fell fatally wounded when he resisted police attempts to arrest him and three companions as bank robber suspects.

Employees of the Whitehouse, O., bank came here today to attempt to identify the dead man as one of two bandits who robbed them a few days ago.

Meanwhile police continued their search for Charles Arthur Floyd, 25, said to be wanted for murder in Kansas City, Mo., who critically wounded Patrolman Ralph Castner, 23, during the gun fight, and then made his escape toward Toledo.

Floyd, first said by girl companions to be Clarence Saunders, later was reported to be an ex-convict who previously served a four-year term in prison at Jefferson City, Mo. Under questioning the girls are said to have admitted that the man's real name is Floyd.

Though they first gave conflicting names, the two girls, one of whom was shot in the scalp during the fight, today said they are Beulah Baird, 21, and Rose Baird 20, of Kansas City.

Beulah Baird was wounded, but her sister, who is held in jail, was unhurt and willing to talk. She said she was the widow of Walter Ash, Kansas City man who was slain a month ago.

Miller was almost instantly killed by Chief of Police Carl Galliaher when the two men resisted attempts made to arrest them.

Police wanted to question them, they said, "because they came to town and threw money away."

Authorities believed they might have been connected with recent bank robberies in this section.

Chief Galliaher said the two men opened fire upon Castner and himself without warning.

Miller was identified as "Billy the killer" from fingerprints. More than $800 in cash and two pistols were found in his pockets.

ROYAL FAMILY GETS WELCOME IN PARIS; ALFONSO TO REMAIN

Watches Progress Of Republic In Spain Shrewdly

PARIS, April 17.—Paris, cradle of republicanism and haven of fallen monarchs, today became the active center of Spanish monarchism as Alfonso XIII of Spain and his family were reunited here after a hasty flight from Madrid.

Banished from their ancestral home when the ancient monarchy became a republic within the space of a few minutes, the royal couple and their children reached Paris by different routes after forty-eight hours of separation and established impromptu court at the Hotel Meurice.

The royal exiles may later proceed to London, but to all indications Alfonso, king of a mythical kingdom, intended to remain at his political vantage point to watch developments in Madrid with a shrewd eye. He already has served notice on the Republic of Spain that he left merely to avert a civil war there, and that he did not relinquish royal rights or abdicate his throne.

Both the King and Queen Victoria received warm welcomes on reaching French soil. Fully 30,000 persons jammed the Gare de Lyon and the outer square as the last of the Bourbon rulers arrived from Marseilles.

A ring of police escorted him to an automobile, which sped away to the hotel Meurice, where Queen Victoria and the children were anxiously awaiting him. They had journeyed overland to Paris, arriving some twelve hours ahead of Alfonso.

Spanish and French royalists turned out en masse to hail the reunion of the king and queen. Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, the former Empress Zita of Austria, and various others who once sat on thrones or held high places in fallen kingdoms, were also on hand to greet the arrivals.

Alfonso, tired after his long journey from Marseilles, where he landed from the Spanish cruiser Principe Alfonso, refused to discuss his future plans. There was no concealing the fact, however, that he regarded himself as still the king of Spain, "temporarily not exercising his royal prerogatives."

HELD FOR NON-SUPPORT
Clyde Johnson, 20, of 2537 Montdale Ave., Dayton, was arrested by Xenia police Thursday and turned over to Probate Court authorities for prosecution on an affidavit charging him with non-support.

Police refused to accept reports that the henchmen of Al Capone killed Masseria, slain New York racketeer, in a $15,000 gold bronze casket, forty detectives attempted to solve the mystery of his death.

Masseria, known as "Joe the Boss" was shot down by two well dressed young men in a Coney Island cafe. His body was found with five bullets in his back.

YORK to make way for his entry. Mulrooney who said although Masseria was a "moderately big shot" in a variety of rackets, he was not as immensely powerful and wealthy as pictured after his killing.

"Joe the Boss" was revealed today as somewhat about average size for a racketeer king. He was 44 and somewhat of a family man. Three sons, two daughters and his widow survive him.

PROMINENT FARMER SUCGUMBS TO HEART TROUBLE ON FRIDAY

Served As Legislator, School Board Member And Lecturer

Death removed one of Greene County's most prominent citizens when William Bradfute Bryson, 76, president of the Greene County Board of Education, former state legislator and widely known farmer, died suddenly at 9:15 o'clock Friday morning in the offices of the Union Finance Co., in Springfield.

Mr. Bryson had gone to Springfield on business. Although he had been ailing for more than a year his health in recent months had shown considerable improvement.

The body was taken immediately to the office of Theodore Schaeffer, coroner of Clark County, who was expected to give a verdict of acute dilatation of the heart as the cause of death. Later it was brought to Xenia by J. H. Nagley, local funeral director.

Mr. Bryson, who was a life-long resident of Greene County, living on a farm about five miles north of Xenia on the Clifton-Town Pike in Xenia Twp., was born on this farm August 19, 1854, a son of James and Nancy A. (Bradfute) Bryson.

Reared to the life of the farm Mr. Bryson, upon completing the course in the district school, entered the old Xenia College on E. Church St., and after a further course there entered Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill.

Upon his graduation from college he returned to the home farm. On November 10, 1880 at Monmouth, Ill., Mr. Bryson married Miss Mary Louise Graham, whose father was one of the founders of Monmouth College. It was while a student at Monmouth that Mr. Bryson became acquainted with the girl, a fellow student, who a few years later was to become his wife.

They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last November 10. In 1881, shortly after his marriage, Mr. Bryson bought the home place of 325 acres, remodeled the house and there established his Meetings will be held throughout the summer and fall if the committee finds any basis for suspicions expressed in the Lorbach resolution which provided for the investigation.

Road experts will be questioned with the hope of finding whether there has been any waste or extravagance in highway spending. Senator Lorbach indicated

AKRON, O., April 17.—Trial of Paul F. Kassay, 37, on charges of criminal syndicalism in connection with an alleged plot to destroy the new navy dirigible, the Akron, today had been postponed until April 27 at the request of Assistant County Prosecutor George Hargreaves.

Written on a sheet of note paper it made bequests exceeding $500,000. No British author, so far as could be learned, left such a sum. Charles Dickens left $400,000, and Anthony Trollope $350,000. Bennett died on March 27.

SHOT TO DEATH
DETROIT, April 17.—William Schultz, 45, alleged by police to be a "blind-pig" operator, was found shot to death today on a west side street. He was believed to have "been taken for a ride" by the underworld and his body thrown out of the death car.

HERE'S GOOD NEWS!
WASHINGTON, April 17.—Business has rounded the curve and "now is definitely on the upgrade," Roger W. Babson, the statistician, declared after visiting President Hoover at the White House.

Babson said he based his belief that a business recovery now is taking place by the increase in carloadings, the labor department's increase in employment and the larger earnings of the chain stores.

SANDINO MOVING ON BLUEFIELDS; SEND CRUISERS TO SCENE

Department Of State Reverses Policy On Resisting Attacks

COLON, April 17.—Bandit insurgents under General Augustino Sandino today extended the scope of their activities toward Bluefields, American naval base on the Nicaraguan east coast, according to word from Nicaraguan National Guard headquarters at Bluefields.

Messages reported the Sandinistas had captured the town of Rama, only sixty miles from Bluefields.

United States marine planes were ordered to bomb the Rama sector, transferring their activities temporarily from Puerto Cabezas, former goal of the main body of rebel forces.

While United States naval authorities persisted in maintaining silence, it was confirmed that the U. S. S. Sacramento, a heading for Puerto Cabezas, while the U. S. S. Memphis is also under way from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The state department today minimized the significance of Secretary of State Stimson ordering the navy's light cruiser Memphis to Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, after once having ordered her return.

Stimson's announcement was made within an hour after a "leak" at the navy department, under strict state department censorship, had revealed the Memphis left Guantanamo, Cuba, Wednesday and was expected at Puerto Cabezas.

The state department, on behalf of Stimson, announced that the Sacramento originally had started for Puerto Cabezas, but that it had been decided to divert her to Blue-

AMUSEMENT TAX MAY BE POPULAR SOURCE OF INCREASED TAXES

Theaters, Ball Games, Etc., May Be Taxed To Get Revenue

COLUMBUS, O., April 17.—An amusement tax today was expected to be added to the list of suggested new sources of revenue by which the legislature's special taxation committee hopes to bolster Ohio's flattened pocketbook.

Though no definite committee action has yet been taken, it was believed here that a state tax on movies, theaters, baseball games and other forms of amusement would be proposed to the legislature when it returns to the capital to begin its special taxation meeting May 11.

The amusement tax has been demanded, it was reported, by persons who have protested that a proposed tax on tobacco would be unfair unless entertainments also are taxed.

Closing its first week's session, the special committee, through Chairman Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, Republican state senator, indicated that it will finish the drafting of proposed bills and hand them over to the legislature about May 1.

By such an arrangement regular tax committees of the house and senate could come here a week ahead of the return of other members of the legislature and start preliminary hearings of proposed bills.

Next week's tax meetings will be principally devoted to consideration of the new intangible bill, a bulky document which will require several hearings.

High School Girls Are Guests Of B. P. W. Club

SIXTY-ONE senior girls of Central High School, St. Bridget High School and the O. S. and S. O. Home were guests of honor at the annual business and professional women's club at K. of P. Hall Thursday evening.

An enlightening talk on "Some Tendencies Affecting Women in Business and Industry Today" was given by Miss Grace Willett, of Antioch College. Miss Willett is personnel director of the extramural school of the college and is in charge of the placement of Antioch co-eds in their cooperative positions. According to statistics quoted by Miss Willett ten million women were gainfully employed in the United States the 1930 census revealed while only eight and one-half million were employed at the time of the 1920 census, thus showing that women are forging ahead in the business world.

"Women are represented in more occupations now than before the war but there will be a tendency within the next few years toward a lowering of wages of women in business," said Miss Willett. Part of her talk was directed to the graduates and she discussed possibilities in teaching, nursing, library work, journalism and business, the department store and the office and secretarial fields. Her talk was delivered in an entertaining and straightforward manner and was well received by her hearers.

"Rich Relations," a two act play, written by Mrs. Lois Van Zant, member of the club, was presented by several members. In the cast were the Misses Helen Hurley, Harriett Keller, Julia Averell, Jean Conklin and Mrs. Van Zant. Miss Irma Glass was accompanist. A group of readings was given by Miss Mildred Mason between acts of the play.

The evening's program opened with a two course dinner served by the Pythian Sisters at 5:45 o'clock. The tables were attractively decorated in a pastel color scheme and favors, compliments of Miss Edna Wolf and Mr. Harry Sohn were at each cover. Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, president of the club, gave a toast to the senior girls and responses were given by Miss Anita Cherry, of Central; Miss Helen Ratchford, of St. Bridget's and Miss Pauline Wilkinson, of the Home. Songs, arranged by Miss Letitia Dillencourt, were sung while guests were seated at the table.

Hostesses for the April meeting were Mrs. Henryetta Loran Shultz, Mrs. Alice Downing, Mrs. Clara Henrie, Miss Edna Wolf and Miss Bertha Hook.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Wisecup, Cedarville, are the parents of a daughter born at their home Thursday morning.

The Junior Missionary Society of the Second U. P. Church will meet at the church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. An "honor roll" will be started at this meeting and prizes will be presented at the end of the year to every member who has attended all of the meetings.

Regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held at Post Hall, Court House, Monday evening. All members are urged to attend as important business will be discussed. Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Fred Baldwin, Mrs. Mary Mangum, Mrs. Mary Conwell and Mrs. Helen Allen.

Mrs. Levitt McDonald, Wilmington Pike, who underwent a serious operation at McClellan Hospital recently, is improving nicely.

MILLIONS PREFER KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

How much better than pills and drugs. For most laxatives have to be taken in constantly increasing doses. Otherwise, they lose their power.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the natural, safe way to protect health. It supplies roughage to sweep poisonous wastes from the system. And it brings iron, which builds up the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In severe cases, with each meal. Try ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, fruit, or honey added. Use it in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

You know, there is a certain amount of "kick" to be gotten out of skipping this column. When on rare occasions we attempt to be entirely serious people think we are trying to be funny. When we try to be facetious our efforts fall on deaf ears. And so the other day when we spoke in our inimitable sarcastic vein about the large number of optimistic local fans who expected to see the Reds play their opening game, and then mentioned the fact we were wondering where we could get a couple of tickets, what was our surprise next day to receive offers of tickets from two different sources. And was our explanation that we really didn't want the tickets at all believed? It was not. Certainly we did not want to see the game. And that afternoon when the "champion" was walking along E. Main St. about 2:30 and heard the play-by-play account of the contest being broadcast over a radio placed out in front of a hardware store, do you for one minute think we stopped to listen? If you think so you are exactly right.

Just as we and almost everyone else supposed in advance, the Reds lost their opener and were then shut out the next day by the Cards. Countless Xenians were in the stands on opening day but the only fan who probably was glad he was Paul Turnbull. He has a souvereign of the occasion. Turnbull realized what all ways been our life-long ambition, an ambition which we have never been lucky enough to fulfill. He is the possessor of one of the baseballs. Frankie Frisch fouled off one during batting practice and the sphere came down in the stands right back of Paul. He grabbed it first, and Mickey McFadden turned green with envy. Once when the Reds were playing an exhibition game at Springfield "Turney," who was among those present, was kidding the Cincinnati players from the stands. He called to "Chuck" Drennon to give him a ball and much to his amazement, Chuck did just that, also autographing it for him.

The first casualty of the current softball season here has been recorded. Clifford ("Chippie") to you! Hagler is the victim. Clifford was wearing a badly bruised right eye Thursday as a reminder of a practice game the night before between the Criterion team, of which he is a member, and the Lang Chevrolet. Clifford collided with so he says—with a fence and the wire mesh played havoc with his eye.

Providing sufficient funds are available to finance the project, the Softball Commission entertains a hope that water for drinking purposes may be piped to Cox Field, scene of softball games this season. The pipe line would be laid under the ground in order to keep the water as cool as possible for thirsty players and spectators. It is estimated it would be necessary to lay about 500 feet of pipe, this being the approximate distance from the comfort station in Shawnee Park to the ball diamond.

Bowling

The 1930-31 Recreation League bowling season was brought to its inevitable close Thursday night, the Xenia Shoes winning three games in a row from the American Legion in the concluding match. Presenting a crippled lineup, the Legionnaires lost each of the three games by wide margins. Christ recorded a series of 534 for the winners and Gannon topped the Legion team with 538. Box scores:

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, April 17.—Sharp declines in a handful of the market specialties and slight recoveries in the industrials and utilities were the outstanding features of a dull and quiet session this morning. American Can moved up about 2 points and Consolidated Gas gained 1 1/4. United States Steel was up a point at 133 and General Electric up 7 1/2 at 44.

KNUTE ROCKNES BEST STORIES

As told by DON MILLER
One of the famous Four Horsemen of Notre Dame

Written for Central Press
The many long trips taken each season by the Notre Dame football teams some years ago caused a sport writer to dub them the Rocknes Ramblers. Their great mileage also earned another nickname—the Nomads of Notre Dame.

As a result of such extensive travel, it is necessary for the boys to study while on their way to and from games. After the charity game in New York last year, in which Notre Dame players participated, a banquet was held in a Gotham hotel and Knute Rocknes was one of the speakers.

In his talk Rocknes touched on that phase of the college athlete's life, the necessity of his keeping abreast of his class in their studies as well as performing capably on the gridiron.

Rocknes spoke seriously on the subject but when he had finished what he had to say his face broke into a smile.

"There was one player at Notre Dame," he said, "who made all the football trips. He was a good football player and, of course, wherever the team went during his time at school, why he went there, too."

"Well, at the end of one season, in which he had seen many strange cities, and to him, strange parts of this country, this lad figured that he had traveled 24,000 miles for Notre Dame that year."

"Imagine my embarrassment—and his—when on the following June he flunked in geography!"

The second fatality resulting from an auto accident on the Dayton-Xenia Pike last March 29 was recorded Friday morning when Victor A. Koenig, 22, of 557 St. Paul Ave., Dayton, died in St. Elizabeth Hospital from injuries suffered in the crash.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY PLEASES AUDIENCE THURSDAY EVENING

Central High juniors presented their class play "Are You a Mason?" in a pleasing manner before a half-filled auditorium Thursday evening in the opening of their two-night performance.

The comedy is by Leo Dietrichstein in three acts and is filled with fun from start to finish. The story opens with a young bridegroom sitting down to his breakfast in his New York home. The maid of the family, Annetta Price, has a strong comedy role and Frank Perry, the bridegroom, is played by David Short. Nearly the entire cast appear on the stage in the opening act and the affairs of the different families become complicated.

A mother and daughter have husbands who account for absences for their households on frequent evenings by falsely pretending to be Masons. The men do not know each other's duplicity and each tells his wife of having advanced to leadership in his lodge. The men go through motions of supposed Mason secrecy while in the presence of their wives, which really means nothing. The older woman is so well pleased with her husband's supposed distinction in the order that she makes him promise to put up the name of a visiting friend for membership. Further perplexity is caused when a suitor for the second daughter's hand proves to be a real Mason. Bloodgood, Richard Ross, was an adventurer in his youth and has married a foreign girl, Angelina Fichu. Perry, the young husband, is in need of cash and a plan is found wherein Fisher, a stock broker friend and former actor, is to play the part of Angelina's long lost and neglected daughter. The three girls treat him as a sister which makes Perry angry. Fisher is in love with Annie, Bloodgood's older daughter. Angelina Fichu Halton, present wife of the visitor who desires to become a Mason, arrives on the scene and then each reveals his duplicity. Everything is straightened out and the whole affair ends with everyone happy.

Mrs. Bloodgood, a recent resident of Rockford, is played by Elsie Parks. Eva Perry, the beautiful, tall, radiant, young wife, is very capably played by Dorothy Kingsbury. George Fisher, Annie's lover who plays the part of the French girl, is played by Paul Baldwin. Annetta is played by Katherine Chey. Lulu is played by Dorothy Need. Ernest Morrison, Lulu's actor chap, is handled in easy fashion by John Beacham. John Halton, the visiting friend, is played by Andrew Frazer. Hamilton Travers, an old-time actor, is played by Frank Armentrout. Mrs. Halton is the long lost Angelina and is played by Martha Brill. Franchon Armentrout is played by Eileen Eayre. Howard Thompson makes his appearance on the stage in the capacity of a loud voiced, burly policeman. Elizabeth Eavey will assume the role Friday night that was played by Annetta Price in Thursday night's performance.

The auditorium was elaborately decorated in green and white for the occasion. The juniors also issued their annual edition of the Central High "Review" at the performance. The paper was a six-page edition and contained a picture of the play cast and class advisor, and also gave the class history.

Special features were given between acts. An instrumental trio composed of Ruth Munger, Martha Ann Baughn, and Katherine Maxwell gave several numbers, accompanied at the piano by Dorothy Lunsford, Martha Baughn and Katherine Keller presented a special tap dancing act between the second and third acts. Miss Juanita Rankin played the accompaniment. The play will be repeated Friday night.—Birch Bell.

Blown Feathers

Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!—James 3:5.

IT is easier to heal leprosy than to forgive sins and avert their consequences. A woman once came to St. Philip and said, "I have spread a slander that runs through Rome, and how shall I atone for it?" St. Philip replied, "Cut a pillow asunder on St. Peter's roof, and let the feathers blow wide. Then gather all those feathers together again." "Impossible!" cried the woman. "Not so impossible as to take out of men's thoughts the falsehood you have spread."

Patience and Mothers

Children find great enjoyment in imagining themselves as warriors, and hardened fighters. Of course it's all in play and usually means nothing, but do just as well to remember that the words they are copied from life. There will be many instances where children will be able to take their children to Sunday School regularly.

Our Country, Our Church

The United States, alone among the great Nations of the World, came into being because of the Church. Our forefathers came here for religious freedom, and today we enjoy what they strove so valiantly to win. It is not amazing that many of us, now, fail to support the institution which gave our country its life and remains its chief strength.

WILL MEET DOUG

She said she will leave within two weeks for New York and possibly Europe. Miss Pickford denied published reports that she and Douglas were on a "marital vacation."

PASTOR VS. PASTOR

PROMINENT FARMER SUCCUMBS TO HEART TROUBLE ON FRIDAY

permanent home on the place where he was born and on which his grandfather had settled upon coming to this country in 1834. In 1913 the residence was destroyed by fire and the owner at once erected a new home. In later years he added to his real estate holdings until he became an extensive land owner.

Mr. Bryson had for years been looked upon as one of the leaders of the Republican party in Greene County. He was elected in 1914 to represent Greene County in the state legislature and during the session of 1915 performed conspicuous service as chairman of the House committee on prison reform.

He was re-elected in 1916 for a second term and although the Republicans were in the minority in the House during the session of 1917, Mr. Bryson was able, by diplomatic methods, to perform valuable service, particularly as a member of the committee on agriculture, and was successful in getting through more bills than any other Republican member of the House.

For more than forty years Mr. Bryson had served as a member of the Xenia Twp. or Greene County boards of education, being president of the county board for many years. When an attempt was made in the lower branch of the legislature to abolish the positions of district supervisors, an important department of the new system of education in Ohio, Mr. Bryson vigorously defended the system and his speech in the House on that subject was given credit for having defeated the reactionary effort to weaken the new system.

Mr. Bryson was also the organizer and first president of the Greene County Farm Bureau and for three terms served as district director of the Ohio State Farm Bureau Federation. He was an elder of the old Third U. P. Church and when this church was united with the Second U. P. Church he remained an elder, also being chairman of the building committee which built the new church. Mr. Bryson earned a reputation as a breeder of fine horses, definitely beginning a successful career as a breeder in 1890. For years his service as a lecturer before farmers' institutes were in demand and he also gave a course of lectures on the subject at Wilberforce University.

For years he kept a stable of a hundred or more head of fine horses but for years past had not carried on his operations in that line extensively, the popularity of the automobile lessening the market for driving horses. Mr. Bryson's specialty had been the Wilkes strain and for twenty-five years or more he held national sales at his farm that drew national attention.

Years ago Mr. Bryson also kept a string of harness horses, making a circuit of the best tracks in the country. During this time he kept a competent trainer on his farm, racing merely to create marks for his sires. Among some of his most noted horses were "West Egbert," his first fast sire; the sire "Tom Keeler" with a mark of 2:04 1/4, and the sire of more than thirty fast colts and "Wilmons," 2:17 1/4.

For two seasons Mr. Bryson was judge at the Ohio State Fair Association's race track and he had many times acted as judge in the show rings. He served as a member of the county fair board for years and also acted as a judge for the racing meet annually held in conjunction with the Greene County fair.

Surviving Mr. Bryson besides his widow is one brother, R. E. Bryson, this city, retired farmer, and three sons, William Graham, James Robert, secretary of the county fair board, both of north of Xenia, and David Brown Bryson, at home. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

The Rev. J. A. Brown, 67, below, deposed minister of Halley's Bluff, Mo. Christian church, is at liberty on $5,000 bail pending trial on first degree murder charge after allegedly shooting the Rev. George Rider, 43, above, Kansas City evangelist, who succeeded him in his church.

When word was received here last Saturday that bandits had attacked the commissary at Logtown, near Puerto Cabezas, killing Capt. Harlan Peley of the Marine Corps, both the gunboat Asheville and the Memphis were ordered to Nicaragua. The Memphis was ordered to return to Guantanamo before it had proceeded half way. The Asheville kept on. Stimson said the Memphis was ordered back because she was not needed.

Today it was explained that the change in the orders to the Sacramento necessitated reordering the Memphis to Puerto Cabezas. This was the first announcement that ships other than the Asheville were to be sent, and it came more than twenty-four hours after the orders were issued.

As if to accentuate the reversal of policy regarding the use of American armed forces in Nicaragua, revealed Wednesday, Stimson announced that the Marines would be withdrawn June 3, next, in accordance with the program of last February. After that date only a train force for the native Guardia totaling about 500 of ficers and men will remain in Nicaragua. They will remain until after the elections in 1932.

Under a program telegraphed to Stimson late yesterday and immediately approved by him, all marines in Occotal Area, the scene of most of the marine reverses during its major drive on Sandino, more than a year ago, will be withdrawn so as to embark for home May 9 and 10. Those at Matagalpa will withdraw to Managua May 15, to effect complete embarkation of combatants on the naval transport Chaumont June 3.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 17.—United States Marine Corps brigade headquarters here was informed today that 300 Nicaraguan insurgents under the rebel chieftain Pedro Altamirano were preparing to seize the port of Bluefields, on the Atlantic side of Nicaragua.

The marine commandant was told that Altamirano has gathered his forces at San Pedro Del Norte and is ready to swoop down upon Bluefields. Led by seasoned native guides, the rebels were said to be planning the pillaging of the town in the rush manner of old "wild west" days.

The news of the impending attack caused little apprehension at Bluefields, as a strong force of "leathernecks" will take charge of that territory today as soon as the gunboat U. S. S. Sacramento arrives in port. It was believed that the bandits, learning of the approaching force, would abandon any attempts against the town.

The Theater

Several days ago this column took occasion to dissertate look that one up) on the apparent vagaries of movie producers in casting aside well-advertised story names to substitute one of their own manufacture.

The column in question quoted Robert Henley, director for Uncle Carl Laemmle's Universal, in an explanation of why story names are changed. Now comes Paul Gulick, press agent for Uncle Carl, to answer and refute the claims made in this column, and in the name of Mr. Henley. To keep the record straight, Mr. Gulick is really writing this stuff for Mr. Henley, but that is between you and me. He writes:

"I perceive, Mr. Higgins, that you are a young man who still has his illusions. I'm mighty glad if I wish I had more of mine, but I have a few left and one of them got stepped on terribly when the Universal Picture Corporation re-titled my picture which Mr. Tarkington called 'The Flirt' and called it 'Bad Sister.' It may have been good business, but it wasn't my own idea of how best to advertise the title of 'The Flirt.'"

"As I already explained there was no possibility whatsoever of retaining the title, 'The Flirt.' No matter how much advertising the title itself had received, no matter how many people knew about it, there was nothing whatsoever in 'The Flirt' to intrigue a modern audience into going to see a picture about flirting. That is just a common, ordinary occurrence and has no significance and no element of devility. And, come to think of it, I have a hunch that that word solves a lot of the problems that you have propounded."

I know that every moving picture producer who is thinking about titles tries to get devility into them. Not down-right wickedness, but something that is daring, modernistic and independent, without being wicked. I think 'devility' just about explains the psychology of titles. Nobody is intrigued by commonplace things. You spoke of 'Apron Strings.' Well, they are mighty commonplace. Thinking about them would probably only result in prejudicing you against anything which had such a title. Even the idea that these appendages sum up of a person who might be tied to them, doesn't inspire a great deal of the interest which modern audiences seem to require in a title before they will go and buy tickets at the box office. It wasn't the 'Apron Strings' title that made people go to see the play in New York, and outside of New York how many people actually knew about the play? How much advertising do you think it really did which could be turned into interest at a moving picture box office? Well, if you ask me, I would say that, solely on the score of the advertising of the title, it might have had one-thousandth of one per cent. And then if you were to ask me what interest there were in the title itself, I would say 'less than half of that.'"

"So you see there was every reason to change the title. Of course, 'Virtuous Husband' wasn't my picture, and I haven't very much right to talk about it, except the right that you have granted me by raising the question. I think the psychology that lies back of this title also conforms to this devility formula. There is no devility in a virtuous husband, but because the title seems to indicate that this is such a rare and unusual occurrence, it sets you thinking that this must be a very devilish picture, and that is one of the principal requirements of a modern title."

"The reason why 'Rain' was not used in moving pictures and 'Sadie Thompson' was used, is an entirely different matter. Several years ago when the stage of New York commenced to get so daring that it was threatening not only to murder itself, but to contaminate other forms of art like moving pictures, sculpture, painting, etc., Mr. Will H. Hays, the boss of the movies, made this announcement and made it in no uncertain terms: The prevalent type of legitimate play must not become the prevalent type of moving picture. Naturally, there were good moving pictures in many of the plays which Mr. Hays designated as the 'prevalent type of legitimate play. The thing that was objected to in the play would be very easily ironed out in the adaptation to the screen, but if the title of that play were used, nobody would stop to worry about the changes which were made. They would just say, 'Here is that terrible play now in the pictures and we must go and see it.' So Mr. Hays decreed that the title of such plays must not be used. Only those people who had seen 'Rain' knew that the principal character's name was Sadie Thompson, so there was the least possible hook-up between these two and this he did permit."

Now, did anybody else have any questions? If not, the class will take its recess

READ THIS FIRST:

Mary Vaughn is private secretary to Ronald K. Foster, an investment banker of Wall Street. She supports her family of mother, twin brothers, and younger sister, Bonnie, to whom she has always given the best of everything. Bonnie dislikes work and makes it known that she does not intend to wage for a living all her days. She is the spoiled beauty of the family. Mary is in love with the dearest Dick Baldwin, who works for another firm in "the street," but Bonnie is doing her best to attract him to herself. Martin Frazier is Foster's wealthiest client, who is very much attracted to Mary, but she treats him with polite diplomacy. He persists in his attention until Mary's employer asks her to humor him occasionally by going out with him on business principles. He is too valuable a customer to offend. So, Mary consents to dine with Frazier on Saturday night.

Mary goes shopping for a new evening gown on Saturday afternoon and Frazier sends his car for her in the evening. Bonnie resolves that Dick shall know about this. Martin Frazier puzzles Mary that evening. She had expected to meet a difficult situation, but he is not only affectionately courteous to her. Next evening, Mary goes with Dick to a Greenwich Village studio party, at which she meets a number of celebrated people. Mary helps her hostess, Willa Duchon, with the supper and begins a friendship which later proves valuable to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 16

"Here are canned chicken, mushrooms, butter, milk—whatever you need. Make them into something, please." Willa and Mary were in the little kitchen of the big studio room, wearing long aprons over their frocks.

Mary noted the orange linen cottage curtains at the one window, a brightly decorated aqua cookie jar in the same colors, the cream walls. Her domestic eye delighted in this spot-and-spread, comfort—beauty apartment of the Duchons. She said so to Willa, whose black eyes twinkled her appreciation. "We love it, too. Though we haven't much time to think about where we live. For six days a week, we work like slaves, about twelve hours a day, Sundays we rest and Sunday evenings we entertain, or go out."

"But don't you go out evenings?" "Rarely. An occasional play, dinner with clients or something. Creative work demands not only much time, but the best that's in you. And you can't give it, wandering higher and yon, dashing here and there to please your friends. Our own kind understand and respect the rights of each other. Oh! I know," she laughed, whipping cream in a bright orange bowl. "The public think that 'arty' people run the gamut of night clubs, Bohemian parties, and what's-on-next. There may be some who do, but the most of us who work regularly have to keep our eyes on the typewriters and easels just like you have to be at your office every day."

"What's more," Willa continued, peering through the glass door of the little electric oven, "punching a time clock for someone else is just as compared with being your own boss. No one can drive you like you can drive yourself. Why, if I take an hour off or a half day, I feel twice as guilty as if I could say to a boss, 'May I have an extra hour this noon?' Because when I come back, my work that no one else could ever do for me, is still staring me in the face. There are always half a dozen things I should be doing at once."

And that's the fun of living—being busy, isn't it?" Mary agreed. "I shouldn't want to exchange my work for idleness if I had ten times the income. That is why all your friends here tonight look so interesting. One just knows that their hands and brains are busy. They look keen—and happy. Work is real happiness, isn't it?"

"You're a treat, Mary. Most outsiders who come here regard us with a sort of envy for the lazy, carefree lives we lead. Either we are just lucky or the inspirational Muses do our work for us—that's the general opinion. If they only knew how we sometimes struggle for hours for an idea—hunches we call them—it's no joke when you have to put out copy like a machine and there is no pattern or rule in the world you can use. As Ramon often says, tearing his hair, 'For heaven's sake what can I have Patsy pet next?'"

Mary carried the steaming chafing dish in to the big table, which was most informally arranged, buffet style. There were French coffee made with hot milk, and Oriental coffee flavored with a few drops of perfume, a bewildering variety of cakes and sweets, pyramids of sandwiches that the maid had left in the refrigerator, hot biscuits and the hot soufflé in the chafing dish.

"These are the improvidents that can live on occasional snacks," Ramon gayly informed Mary, helping her serve the plates with generous mounds of the steaming chicken. He grinned as he placed a single mushroom on Ashley's plate, who promptly handed it back to Mary for a real serving. Mary liked their sarcastic banter.

She learned that none of them were married except the Duchons, hence the frequent invasion. Sheila King had been married, but her husband had proved to be a ne'er-do-well, who lived on her devotion and income until another woman had offered him and equal devotion and more income. Mary gradually learned about their private lives from Dick and Willa. For, as time passed, she became very friendly with Willa. And it was Willa Duchon who became Mary's tower of strength when the trying days arrived.

Mary often reflected later upon that joyous Sunday evening when life had seemed just too good to be true; the pleasant, interesting group of people and then the chummy drive from the city with Dick.

He drove most of the way with one arm about her and Mary, feeling so utterly content and glad to be there where she belonged, in the circle of his arm, nestled against the rough cloth of his shoulder. It was very late when they reached the house, so he didn't go in. But he parked the car and drew her close as he said, "Do you know you are awful sweet, Mary? Everybody likes you, but not half as much as I do." It flashed through Mary's mind that those were the very words Martin Frazier had said to her only last evening—could it be only last evening? Aeons and worlds away, it seemed. And how different were their inference and portent to her now! Martin's had conveyed flattery, fatuous, physical desire, fleeting fancies. Dick's held sincerity, promise, devotion, protection.

She turned her face toward Dick to speak, but was startled to find that her lips touched his, instead. He kissed her lightly, tenderly and then—fiercely, longingly. In that moment Mary felt, subconsciously, that everything in the world, in life, in love, were hers. It was as vast and sweeping as all eternity.

and as brief as the moment of its duration. Her own lips answered his without hesitation, question or fear. She had lived every day since she first saw Dick, for this very moment, it was hers, by every primal law of the universe.

"Mary," he murmured against her face, his voice shaken. "You—do care like that? Sweetheart!" Vaguely, she wondered, was he proposing to her? Did he love her? Of course, he did. The thought and the moment were too sweet for doubts. She whispered, "Yes, Dick, I do. And—your?"

"I've never found another girl like you, Mary. But we're going to pal around until I reach the goal I've set for myself before I start another project. Then we can talk business. I don't think we should tie ourselves up to any promises until I know what I can do for you. By that time, we'll both be sure, and know each other better. Okay, darling?"

She nodded, happily. Half a loaf was better than none for a girl like Mary. She knew she was very sure now of herself. Weeks or months, or years could never change her love for Dick. She would be waiting for him when ever he was ready to offer her everything.

"Good-night, dear," he told her, his voice tender. "I'll see you some more this week and we go to the Duchons again next Sunday night, remember."

"Then you come out here for dinner first."

"That's jake with me, honey. You can't get me to veto a suggestion like that," happily.

Mary lingered over her preparations for what was left of the night, thinking of Dick, how deeply stirred his voice had been, how his arms had held her; and fell asleep with the warmth of his kisses on her lips.

Mary was the kind of girl who loves completely, and knows her man when she finds him. To be happy required for her his whole devotion in return. But whether happy or unhappy, she was wholly his and not even all the fears and trials of life could swerve her loyalty and love. He might deny her his love, might never accept hers and abuse it, might never recognize it even—but it would be there, waiting for him, if ever he wanted it.

When such a woman captures the love of that man and his devotion, then life is gladly complete and her cup of happiness is filled to overflowing. For as her love accepts, it gives out double measure and her small world is blessed by the redundancy.
